

About the project

The Go Up project aims to boost the participation of refugees, asylum seekers and migrants in adult education supporting teachers, educators and counsellors with tailor made innovative methodologies and tools designed to build resilience and enhance intercultural competencies through theatre techniques. To do so, the Theatre of the Oppressed has proved for decades its effectiveness addressing the social and psychological effects associated with social vulnerability.

Six partners from Greece, Ireland, Portugal Spain and Turkey –Adult Education and VET providers, NGOs and social and cultural organizations– are working together developing the following project results:

- Go Up Online Digital Database of good practices and resources in Intercultural and Inclusive Theatre.
- Training Curriculum for Intercultural and Inclusive Theatre. An ECVET based curriculum for the assessment, validation and recognition of learning outcomes.
- Go Up Pedagogical Handbook providing innovative pedagogical and methodological approaches on the use of theatre techniques to teach intercultural competencies and support the cultural integration of refugees, asylum seekers and migrants.
- Go Up Toolbox including a set of practical contents, activities and methods on Intercultural and Inclusive Theatre aimed at adult education teachers, trainers, tutors and counsellors

Final Conference in Lisbon, Portugal

Stakeholders and target groups of the project attended the conference divided in 28th and 30th of December, to keep the safety due to COVID restrictions. The Theatre of the Oppressed was presented as a way to boost resilience of migrants, refugees and asylum seekers and help them developing their intercultural skills.

During the conference, Anabela Rodrigues, project manager from SOLIM, held a workshop on Theatre of the Oppressed techniques with the participants. Om Bahadur shared his experience as project beneficiary involved in the pilot phase. Finally, Timóteo Macedo, director of SOLIM, presented the exploitation possibilities of the project outputs with relevant stakeholders as the Lisbon City Hall, with which a project will be developed from January 2021.
